Write a simple blogging platform using Laravel. The platform should have 3 views only:

1. A view displaying all the blog posts (with pagination)
2. A view displaying the detailed content of a specific post of choice
3. A view with a form allowing anyone to create a new post

You do need to implement Authentication (i.e. a login / user registration page), and you need to use Migration to create your schema and tables and Eloquent to map your data sources to Models.

The person who creates the most user friendly platform and implements basic authentication will get h(er)is name on the wall of fame.
